“ I was unemployed and looking for a job when I saw a small ad in the paper that said “If you are interested in the worst job in the world, call...” I could not help calling, and when I did, Oscar answered. I got the job, probably because I had a pulse, and it was the start of my career of which I now own my own firm. He was tough, and did not tolerate any foolishness, but he taught me a lot about the business, and about people, including myself. At the time, I had some personal issues and one day he brought me into the office, and in a loving way, demanded I come clean about my problems. We had a heart to heart talk, and he took personal responsibility to make sure I got the help I needed, and that effort by him (Marty was there every step of the way) started the process of me getting myself together. He was one of those people that made a difference in other people’s lives, for no other reason than he had a big heart, and a lot of love inside. God Bless him, and his family.

“ I remember the first (of many) time we were in your home visiting you from church. The evening was full of laughter, stories, ohh-ing and ahh-ing over the amazing home you had built and the fur babies that got to live inside (which spoke my language!). You all were MY kind of people! I love you both for so many reasons. Oscar's heart was as big as they come...giving people the chance to become whatever they could. He employed my nephew for his first job and mentored him by modeling how to be a man. For that I'll always be grateful. His compassion for anyone in need was evident by his presence. He was THERE for you to tell him what you needed and then he'd do whatever it took to see if he could get it! Marty, you were the love of his life and the object of his affections. He no doubt committed his life to honor and cherish you. Josh, you were the pride of his heart. His respect for you was sincere and great. He loved the life you are making for yourself with the precious additions of Ashley, Ty and Easton. Girls, he couldn't have loved you more. He talked about you both with that "Daddy's protective nature tone" that said, "don't mess with my girls!"

My heart breaks with yours and my prayer is that you will feel the love of Jesus now Who has Oscar with Him in His arms, and as the days, weeks and months pass, that you will know His peace through the memories you have and the lives you shared together.

"For I am convinced that neither death nor life, neither angels nor demons, neither the present nor the future, nor any powers, neither height nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God that is in Christ Jesus our Lord." Romans 8:38-39

I love you all.
