“ Well it's been two years since I've written anything. I maybe a little crazy writing in here but for some reasons it makes me feel better... It's close to Father's Day again... Odd that bothers me as again u never celebrated it. Guess it's just the reminder of... I wanted to tell you I think of you often. Hear your voice still. Dream about you a lot more than before. I can't really ever touch you or get to you but your there.. Wanted you to know (which you probably already do) I found Jesus last year around this time. Actually I found He was never lost.. I was. He has opened my heart and my eyes to the life I'm supposed to live. I wonder how you would react to the new me.. The old me died off and Jesus restored me. I still miss you dearly but the pain is not as severe as it was. Not because of time, but because He showed me you are there with Him. Tell Him I said hello and thanks for saving you, me , our family, and the rest of the world if they so choose... Love you daddy!!

“ I know you didn't celebrate father's day, or any holiday for that matter..... but the closer it gets to it for some reason the harder it is. Guess with the "first everything" this year without you it's just hard..... Missing you lots daddy.##imported-begin##Jenny Marie##imported-end##

“ Sending Prayers out to the entire Needham Family and pray that God provides comfort to you during this difficult time. I have known Jenny for several years now and we have become so close like family!

From my many talks with Jenny I can tell Mr. Needham was a hard working man and really loved his family.

I know he is resting with Jesus now and heard the words "Job well done!"

Much Love,

“ I haven't known Jenny long, but I listened to the conversation with her Dad recently and it made me happy, reminded me of my relationship with my father. They were so close and I could tell what a wonderful Dad he was. I feel for your family and I hope you can hold on to the wonderful experiences he brought into your lives. I hope that God continues to watch over your family and blesses you. much love
