“Gee, I saw my Dad as strong and wise. The smartest man I've known. Didn't know kidney disease was stronger. Many times his ideas and advice were wonderful. He hopes those he shared them with will remember

“I am a paraprofessional that works in Red Oak ISD. Mr. Harpold came to ROE on many occasions to substitute teach. He was such a kind and caring man. He loved children and they loved him. I hope that you will find comfort and peace in this difficult time.

Thank you.
He enjoyed it! He often said he hoped he helped the children.
He had nice things to say about the teachers too

“Norm is an individual who will remain in memories of family and friends for years to come, and stories about him and by him will be told and retold at family gatherings. Norm overcame much adversity to become the person he was. His pride in his children knows no bounds, and they return that love and pride. Who wouldn't want to know for oneself the kind of love and respect that Norm knew from his family and friends.. Rest in Peace, dearest of brothers.

“ A very special memory of Norm was of his being a substitute teacher. Who would have thought that once he reached retirement, he would take on another vocation? Perhaps because he had enjoyed teaching adult classes, workshops, and seminars, he decided to give a hand to the public schools. Clearly his heart was really in it, as students expressed delight when he returned to the classroom on subsequent assignments. He was full of stories about his charges, stories that displayed his love, caring, and perception; his attention to progress and problems of his students, even when he did not have them full time. i am sure many of these now-grown students will still recount stories of his teaching.

“ I knew Norman all my life. He was my uncle. The Harpold family can be rowdy when it is together. Norman was the quiet voice of humorous asides, witty observations, and spontaneous one-liners. I don't know what a "Texan" looks like, but even when he was young, Norman looked to me what a "Texan" looked like in my imagination. I'm afraid I cannot explain it any better than that. Mom kept several cardboard boxes of loose photos. One of our family pastimes involved periodically going through the boxes. On one such occasion, I found a photo of a very young Norman. Holding it up for Mom to see, I asked, "How old was Norman in this photo?", Mom replied, "That's not Norman, that's you. You were 17". I'm glad I knew Norman. I'm glad he was my uncle. I'm glad he was always happy to turn Amanda over to Terri, my sister, and I when she became old enough that Norman and Mary couldn't wait to hand her off to somebody for a bit. I'm sad you're gone, but I'm glad I knew you, Norman. You rounded out any group of people you were with wonderfully.
